On our second attempt, the first ever Sin City Chamber of Commerce Poker Tournament is finally on. We originally had planned this for last year but felt it was to close to the first Golf Tournament so planned it for this year. After negotiating and scheduling the event at the Plaza Hotel & Casino downtown, the new owners of the Plaza decided they didn't want to host the event due to the Sin City name and the fact that we welcome and promote the legal brothels in Nevada. This worked out well as we do prefer to do the events at member locations so we called Fiesta Rancho and they were happy to accommodate the tournament and they were willing to do it on a Saturday.

May 27th, 1:00 p.m. start time. Fiesta Rancho Casino has set aside a special room for the tournament so it will be private and fun. This will be a limited time tournament, 4 hours of play, player with the most chips at the end of the time will be declared the winner. The buy-in is a total of $250, $50 is designated for costs on the event. Ten percent will be donated to Shade Tree Women and Children's Center. The first place winner will receive a total of 40% of the remaining player pool as first prize. The last 9 players will each receive a percentage of the prize pool after that. The prize pool is based on the total number of paid entries to the tournament. Naked Fortune has arranged for 10 bounty players. If you knock any of these players out of play during the tournament you will receive a special prize and recognition.

Since we are down to three weeks to play, your early RSVP's would be appreciated.

You can sign up online at www.sincitychamberofcommerce.com or call the office at 450-7222 to get enrolled. We look forward to seeing you at the first ever Sin City Chamber Poker Tournament.

A Hot Spring in the Forecast

The weather is heating up and so are the events in store for the members of the Sin City Chamber Of Commerce. Now that we have recuperated from the awesome BBQ and Carnival at the Chicken Ranch Brothel in Pahrump, we are preparing for our presence at the Gay Pride Festival.

Of course, first we will all be having fun at the mixer at Lucky Chengs, the drag queen capital of the world on Thursday, 6:00 p.m., May 11th. Did you RSVP yet?

What a great way to start our celebration of gay pride. I hope you all made plans to be there because you will really have an enjoyable time. Lucky Chengs is brand new to Las Vegas but they are not a new organization. They also have a place in New York City and prior to Hurricane Katrina, they had a place in New Orleans. Now we hope they become a landmark on the Las Vegas night scene because believe me it is a great place to go to have good pan-Asian food, some crazy waiterssssss-tresses, and some audience participation and interactive fun. Your out of state visitors will love to visit Lucky Chengs, too.

The Gay Pride parade will take place downtown at dark on Friday, May 12th. We will be riding in the parade and carrying our Sin City Chamber Of Commerce Banner. Visit us at the Gay Pride Festival downtown at the Las Vegas Amphitheatre where we will have a booth.

Once Gay Pride Week is over we are really going to be bugging everyone to be a part of our first Poker Tournament at the Fiesta Rancho. We hope some of you learned a little more about the game during our BBQ at the Chicken Ranch. The folks at nakedfortune.com worked hard in the mid-day sun to teach us the game of Texas Hold'em. So sign up to test your skills.

The buy-in will be $200, $50 Cost for a total of $250. The prize pool depends on the number of participants. We hope to get 100 players to sign up. If we get 100 players, the top prize can be $8000. Naturally, if there are fewer participants the prize pool will be decreased.

There will be cash prizes for everyone making it to the final table but all the participants will receive some goodies as well as a good time. The major sponsors of the Sin City Chamber of Commerce Poker Tournament are the Chicken Ranch Brothel, New Beginnings Laser Concepts and nakedfortune.com. We have table sponsorships available, too. If any member is interested in a table sponsorship, call us at the office, 450-7222.

Now that we have recuperated from the awesome BBQ and Carnival at the Chicken Ranch Brothel in Pahrump, we are preparing for our presence at the Gay Pride Festival.

Chamber Thoughts

~ By Wayne Bridge, CEO

Just a few thoughts we would like to share with you this month. For the past 20 months we have been questioned repeatedly about the Sin City name. We truly value each of the business men and women who choose to see beyond the words and become members of this new and innovative chamber. I want to share the latest in regards to this issue.

When questioned about the reason they wouldn't host the event, the response was, "We don't do anything with Sin City or with an organization that has brothels in them." There was no room to negotiate on the issue, . . .

We met with and agreed upon a date for our first ever Poker Tournament with the poker room manager and Special Events Coordinator for the Plaza Hotel and Casino. Last week I received an e-mail from the Executive Assistant to the Executive Vice President, (whew) saying they were not co-sponsoring or hosting this event. That no one at the Plaza had been given the authority to schedule an event like this in their poker room. When questioned about the reason they wouldn't host the event, the response was, "We don't do anything with Sin City or with an organization that has brothels in them." There was no room to negotiate on the issue, we had to scramble to find a new location and poker room to move forward with the event.

The same week we met with a contingent of Gentlemen's Club owners who brought an interesting perspective, from their point of view, to the meeting. Sin City Chamber has brothels and escort services as members and these particular clubs have issues with these other adult companies. It was amazing the prejudice that we see in different business arenas as we continue to grow. Needless to say, we didn't sign these clubs up that night. It appears that most of this group is happy to be isolated in the community and takes pretty much the same view of their industry as the politicians and more conservative businesses have.

We created an all-inclusive chamber to break down the separations that have existed in the business community for many years. We will continue to work towards that end, educating some in the process, embracing the entire history of Las Vegas and Nevada, and representing everyone with dignity, equality and respect. Sometimes I think that everyone believes they are open minded and free spirited, until I run into opposition and prejudices that we have found in building the Sin City Chamber of Commerce.

Sometimes I think that everyone believes they are open minded and free spirited, until I run into opposition and prejudices that we have found in building the Sin City Chamber of Commerce.

It makes me appreciate every member that much more, the truly open minded, accepting individuals that you are that are willing to meet and share a little time with someone who might be a little different, who thinks a little different, and who is willing to give everyone a chance. A special thanks to Fiesta Rancho Casino for providing the new location for our first ever Sin City Chamber Poker Tournament. Thank you to each and every one of our members, the really special people in our fair city.

Erotic Dancing – Overcoming a sexual fear.

An enlightening Story published in Marie Claire Magazine.
By Fawnia Mondey-Dietrich
www.ExoticDanceSchool.com

"I like knowing I can control how aroused he becomes."

Lisa, 28 Travel Agent

WHY SHE'S AFRAID: My boyfriend asked me to perform a striptease for him before, but I've always refused. I'm glad he's comfortable sharing his fantasies, but I feared the whole experience would make me feel like a cheap, objectified stripper. He also mentioned that his ex used to gyrate for him, and I was afraid that she has set standards that I couldn't live up to. It's important to me that he and I make up our own memories, and I didn't want him to replace her face with mine in her head.

HOW SHE CONQUERED IT: After a romantic dinner one night, we went back to his apartment and popped in our favorite Portishead CD. I had just bought a pair of really hot stiletto boots, so I was strutting around his living room like a model on a catwalk – just to be silly. When our favorite song came on, I pushed him onto the sofa, and began to swivel my hips and have fun with it. The transition felt really natural. I eventually stripped down to my bra and underwear – with my boots still on, of course. I even gave him a lap dance. I felt in control and at ease the whole time. I tried not to take myself too seriously, and we bantered throughout my performance. In the end I had a laugh, and he got really turned on. It was a win – win experience!

SHE LEARNED: Once I learned that I could make the experience entertaining for both of us – and in a funny style that suits our rapport – my preconceptions and inhibitions disappeared, and my little striptease took on a whole new meaning. I like knowing I can control how aroused he becomes without feeling tawdry myself. He hasn't stopped talking about my performance since!

WHAT HER GUY THINKS: I was completely unprepared for how sexy Lisa's dancing would be. And in those boots! I love how we naturally transitioned from being silly to being really sexy; it was just totally organic. My ex girlfriend didn't cross my mind at all - Lisa's easily the better dancer, anyway. I think Lisa overcame her phobia because she did it on her own time, in her own way, without pressure from me.

WHAT OUR EXPERT SAYS: Research shows that almost all men love to watch their partners undress, yet most women feel uncomfortable about trying a striptease, especially if they have body-image concerns. What was need about the way this couple approached her phobia was that she concurred her fear in a way that was natural for her, and she made it something entertaining for herself and yet still sexy for him. Being afraid of being compared with an ex-girlfriend is really common – often to the extent where women don't like to eat at the same restaurants or see the same movies that their guy did with an ex. But learning to relax about this fear can help many relationships. If a guy asks you

On a beautiful Saturday afternoon, the Sin City Chamber of Commerce and hosts Chicken Ranch Brothel, welcomed over 200 guests for the 2nd Annual Spring BBQ. All the food and drinks were provided by the Chicken Ranch Brothel. The carnival games were designed to be fun and a little naughty too.

Special guest, Michelle Freridge, Executive Director, of the Free Speech Coalition attended and was invited to provide information to attendees. The carnival games which included a Dunk Tank sponsored by Onsite Dental and the balloon burst raised money, part of which the Sin City Chamber of Commerce will be donating to the Free Speech Coalition.

“What a day! Members are having fun. We are promoting a great organization like the Free Speech Coalition and we could not be more thankful to the wonderful people at the Chicken Ranch” commented Loretta Holt, President of the Sin City Chamber.

We All Speak the Language of Referrals

There are many tried and true fundamentals of increasing your business thru referrals. One of the most obvious is look to your current circle of business clients, family, and friends. These are the people who know you best, have done business with you already, and are exposed to you often. You don't need to "sell" them on you because you have already done that.

Past clients are a great way to receive 2nd and 3rd tier referrals (referrals that come directly from them without you having to chase new business).

Ways to accomplish this include:

- Don't be afraid to ask for a referral or business. They may know someone or recently overheard a conversation from a potential client for you. When you ask, it is their chance to refer, therefore, ASK OFTEN!
- Keep past clients informed on your business. If you have new services, specials, new products etc. let them know about you. Easy ways to do this include e-mail, newsletters, direct calls, holiday cards or birthday cards. These opportunities are golden and allow you to constantly "drip" on their mind.
- Send referrals THEIR WAY! If they are self employed, in sales, or have a home based business remember to recommend them! What a better way to say "thank you" than to show them that their business is important to you also. This "Givers Gain" approach is unselfish and a trait of any master networker.
- Invite them to network with you. This can be fun for them as they meet new people and attend events. This team approach is particularly useful when meeting a lot of people at one time. Each of you can double the amount of people you meet and keep an eye out for one another with potential new clients.

The Sin City Chamber of Commerce offers so many ways to increase your business via the variety of events and luncheons. There are always new people to meet and form bonds to develop new channels for business. Hopefully, you were able to attend some of our great events last month. If not, what are you waiting for? The business is there, go out and get it!

Civitas to Focus on Wholesale

LAS VEGAS - Luck was definitely a lady from April 3-5, when Civitas unveiled its product line during the recent International Lingerie Show at the Rio Hotel. The "classy" yet "casual" products held the limelight as The Purseless Purse became a must-have item — slated as the hottest accessory in the industry!

Sherri Wall Dwelley and Deborah Burnett teamed up for Civitas at the event. Wall Dwelley returned to the fashion world as vice president of global sales and marketing for Las Vegas-based Civitas LLC. Burnett, who manufactures The Versa Case and The Purseless Purse, is the creator, designer, owner, president, and chief executive officer of the company, but she's also held former positions as the owner of International Fabrics of Las Vegas, promotional manager for Tower of Jewels, Fred Meyer's head trainer for 58 store locations, and business consultant for G.A. Wright, a leader in retail management.

Wall Dwelley was former vice president and director of sales and marketing at both Forplay and Delicate Illusions. She was the first in the business to solicit, sell, and secure a signed contract in a deal that joined the protocol design of the standard Halloween costume with that of the sexy adult costume.

As the vice president of global sales and marketing for Civitas, Wall Dwelley suggested to get out of the retail selling and focus on wholesale. Burnett considered that advice and additional suggestions by Wall Dwelley, which eventually spawned the Civitas product line.

Civitas and its product The Purseless Purse nabbed the spotlight, garnering interest and curiosity from exhibitors and buyers from the other two showrooms at the Rio Hotel.

The Purseless Purse is designed to be worn on the wrist, arm, thigh, belt, or ankle, it is a hand-beaded bracelet that is seen by others on the top of the wrist when worn, yet it features a mini purse that rests discreetly on the inside of the wrist. There are presently more than 160 crafted styles.

The item allows those in costume who do not wish to carry a purse, wallet, or keys to shop with more freedom of movement. The product is also ideal for using at a casino; when shopping; jogging, at the gym, traveling; during a day at the beach, an amusement park, a museum, an aquarium, or any outdoor activity.

On Wednesday, the closing day of the show, an agreement was entered between Civitas and Michel Joannis of Jolar-Speck Importations, making Jolar-Speck its first contracted international distributor for sales within Canada. Negotiations, impossible for completion due to time restraints, shall resume in the coming weeks, with regard to the distribution and sales for Australia, Switzerland, and the U.K.

Meanwhile, Civitas is hiring sales representatives for major territories. Only those with at least five years' experience in sales and the fashion and apparel industry need apply. Your interest to carry the Civitas product line and a listing of all other lines you represent or carry to sell should be directed to Wall Dwelley.

Dear Sin City

Hi Michael

I'm not sure how I originally got on your mailing list for Sin City, but I regularly get your mailshots at work.

I've been meaning to write to you for some time, because whenever I get the mailouts I feel such a sadness. I became a Christian about 3 years ago now, and it's only been since then I've realised that sin - which is portrayed as glamorous, fun and living for the moment, is so empty and painful. The things people chase - sex, gambling, drink... they all give highs just for a moment, but they aren't sustaining, infact they actually cause harm because they aren't built on love, they're built on being completely self seeking. I'm not trying to have a go at you or judge you, but I just wanted you to consider whether there is an alternative way of life - one where people genuinely love and care for others. Where love is the most important thing.

Thanks for listening,

Rosie

Rosie:

Thank you for your comments. We feel as you do that love is very important. We are the only Chamber that embraces everyone and its about time that everyone was made to feel welcome. As a Christian, ask yourself, would Jesus not take care of the working girls or have compassion for the families that work in these industries. These wonderful people are outcast by the mainstream. This is wrong.

I personally go to the Chicken Ranch Brothel every few months to speak with the ladies and make them understand that someone does care about them. We want them to be healthy and happy. We encourage them to contact our members and not feel ashamed about what they do. Surprisingly enough, many of the ladies have husbands and kids. We are proud to represent them and offer them simple things like healthcare, a mortgage or an accountant. What you do and who you are makes no difference to the Sin City Chamber. . . We will never cast that first stone.

Again, we appreciate your comments and as we always say if we were in New York, we would be the Big Apple Chamber of Commerce. Las Vegas was built on vice and millions annually flock here to escape.

I am sure that some have a problem with the name "Sin City" but we believe this is due to ignorance. I can not stress enough that we embrace all. The best part, we are not alone. We have over 325 members and about 80% of these companies are mainstream businesses, each believes as we do that people deserve to be treated with respect. Keep in mind, we are not the adult chamber, we are not the gay/lesbian chamber. We simply embrace everyone.

One final note, our adult industry members are the first ones to help with our events. By donating product and services, we are able to contribute to our local non-profits. During Christmas, we delivered 100 toys to the Shade Tree Foundation and another 50 to Children of Incarcerated Parents. We have 8 special events planned this year that will contribute to some great causes.

For us, love is not the most important thing, it's the only thing. We don't get tied down to the dogma associated with certain groups which alienate entire populations. To the religions of the world which constantly are at war and segregate individuals and cause so much pain, I ask ~ Where is the Love?

Should they all not embrace every soul? That's what we do and we do not judge.

Best Wishes,

Michael Russell

Executive Vice President

to do something that his ex used to do, it doesn't mean he is trying to turn you into that partner; it just means that he happens to like that activity and now wants to share it with you.

WHAT FAWNIA SAYS: I believe that all women (and men) have it within themselves and need to, venture outside of their comfort zones. Erotic dancing is no exception. The art of striptease is becoming the way to enhance relationships. Maybe it has been for a long time, but haven't you noticed we are witnessing striptease in more than just the movie. Sex in the City, Montel Williams, Kelly and Regis, Hope and Faith, King of Queens and even the queen of daytime TV, Oprah are becoming very familiar with erotic dancing. Since the production of the world's first instructional pole dancing DVD in 1998 (Pole Work, volume 1, by Fawnia Mondey) I have seen women from all professions stop, and take notice. Pole dancing, erotic dancing, strip tease and lap dancing are fast becoming solid trends. A trend, that if continued will result in how our wonderful open minded European friends view sex.

WHAT EUROPEANS SAY: With this in mind I asked Kimbal from: www.mypole.co.uk his opinion on Striptease, Sex in the Media, and Pole Dancing.

Kimbal writes: "I think Europeans can't be categorized so broadly. There are huge cultural distinctions across Europe, especially with sexual attitudes. For example I'm in the UK; until recently hard core pornography was illegal, although easy to purchase, whereas other parts of Europe (France, Greece, Germany) pornography would be broadcast on terrestrial TV channels. UK pornography magazines are displayed on the top shelves of Newsagent shops and weren't allowed to contain pictures of an erect penis. On the other end of the scale newsstands in the streets of Greece will have pornography with anal sex pictures on full view to all. My reply will be from my opinion of being in the UK."

Striptease – "Traditionally we would relate strip tease to small city centre dingy pubs with spit and saw dust on the floor, nowadays we associate striptease with glamorous pole and lap dancing clubs which have appeared over recent years following on from the USA. They are currently opening up all over the UK. It has gone from being a small group of performers practicing their art to mass bump and grind lap dancing clubs spreading through the UK."

Sex in the media – "I pay very little interest in the media. I think a lot of people are obsessed with celebrity and sex and the media flood us with tales of celebrity and politician sexploits."

Pole Dancing – "Pole dancing was associated with the clubs mainly found in the large cities of the UK. Over recent years Pole Dancing has been adopted by gymnasiums as a trendy exercise method. I think it has moved on and has been accepted by ladies of all ages who are doing it for exercise and fun and are being very open about it."

OUR EXPERT: Debbie Herbenick is a sex educator and researcher at Kinsey Institute. She is also an associate instructor on human sexuality at Indiana University.
